Read the following:

According to Transparency International's 2022 Corruption Perceptions Index, Kenya scored 32 on a scale from 0 ("highly corrupt") to 100 ("very clean"). When ranked by score, Kenya ranked 123rd among the 180 countries in the Index, where the country ranked first is perceived to have the most honest public sector. Corruption in the health sector in Kenya has further intensified inequality. Poor people and other marginalized groups are hit the hardest. For example, women's reliance on health services plagued by corruption makes them vulnerable to abuse, blocking access to vital contraceptive, reproductive, and child health services. Tragically, for many, this pushes them into poverty and sometimes death. Corruption in health also hinders the fight against HIV/AIDS and other diseases. Medicine shortages (often due to drug thefts) and absenteeism cause interruptions in individual patients' treatment regimes.
